DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-2, 5, 8 and 10-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Rattee et al (4315790).

'790 teaches applying a composition to a fabric or other flexible substrate (1:7-11), the composition being comprised of a dye or pigment, a film-forming polymer, a crosslinking agent and a catalyst (see Abstract; 3:55-4:15). The composition is applied to a supporting substrate (i.e. backing foil) by screen printing (see Examples). Examples 7 and 9 are examples of the composition being directly applied to the supporting substrate with screen printing. The supporting substrate can be a plastic film, metal foil or paper (4:57-5:29). The layer of transferable composition material on a substrate is pressed to the fabric while heating (an example of contact heating), and in one embodiment, the heating effects curing of the composition before removal of the substrate (6:65-7:11). The curing may also be started before removal of the substrate and finished after removal (7:5-11). The applicant has admitted in the September 22/2005 response that curing prior to removal of the backing foil, after removal or prior to and after removal are obvious variants.

The polymers include acrylics and others that would be polymerizable by free-radicals (5:41-68). The application of the coating may be considered original coating or decoration with an image.

'790 does not directly teach that the composition is applied to an automotive body, but the fabric of '790 could be part of an automobile, such as fabric made from polyester or nylon (i.e. plastics) to be used in car seats.

Response to Arguments

The applicant has argued in the 6/4/2007 amendment that the substrates of the claims cannot be fabrics. The examiner's position is that the broadest reading of "automotive body" is any part of an automobile, such as cloth or flexible plastic car seats.

The applicant has argued that Rattee does not disclose screen printing of curable coatings. The applicant is directed to Examples 7 and 9 where the curable coating is directly applied to paper by screen printing.

Applicant's assertion that the techniques of Rattee could not be used to cure an automotive body, the examiner contends that the techniques of Rattee could be used to cure a flexible coated substrate used in an automobile, such as a cloth or plastic used in a car seat or interior parts.

Conclusion

3. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
